- B. Understand the basic features and history of key health system components to include the public and private sectors and the four functions of delivery, financing, insurance, and payment.
- C. Understand the political and economic assumptions of the health services system and the conflicts these assumptions generate as well as their impact on the variables of access, cost, and quality of health services.
- D. Demonstrate an understanding of the historical evolution of the U.S. health services system and current pressing health services issues.
- E. Develop and refine the ability to synthesize materials, lead discussions, and make oral presentations.

VI. METHOD OF EVALUATION:

Examinations will be made available in the courseroom and will be open book, and open notes. The purpose of the examinations are to test knowledge of health services topics from the perspective of a practitioner of management in the field of health administration (40 percent of final grade per examination).

Research Paper. The purpose of the research paper is to enable students to develop and refine their research and writing skills in the practice of management. Students will select a health services topic of interest to research and prepare a 5-10 page (excluding cover page and reference list; no abstract required) research paper. This paper will provide a brief review of the literature on the topic of interest that develops and articulates either a statement of problem or opportunity in health services administration. The literature review will include at least one source that provides empirical evidence that the proposed health administration problem or opportunity is substantial in the field. A suggested topic will be submitted to the instructor by the fourth week of class for approval. Topics will expand on areas covered in the textbook and class discussion. Appropriate sources include published books, articles in peer reviewed journals, or first-tier print media. Magazine articles and articles from non-peer reviewed journals are generally not appropriate and may be referenced in this paper only by exception. The final paper must be typed (1 inch margins/10-12 point font), double-spaced, and follow Publication Manual of the American Psychological Association, 5th ed. (APA) format. Students will cite at least ten relevant and valid sources in the final paper. Papers will be submitted in electronic format in week 10 (peer review draft) and week 11 (final draft). Papers not received by the last day of class (August 9) will not be considered for grading (30 percent of final grade).

The evaluation of the research paper will be based on the following criteria:

Content – Quality of research based on substance of material presented and depth and breadth of research.

Context – Logic, clarity, and organization of material, as well as demonstrated importance of topic to health care delivery.

Form – Adherence to the provided format and style manual and extent to which the work meets graduate level attention to grammar and appearance.

Participation in Current Events Discussion. Students are required to be familiar with current health services related articles and news items. Recommended sources of current events include the American Health Line email list, the Wall Street Journal or other newspapers, and current health services journals. Students are required to share a current article / event with the class each week and lead a brief class discussion in the courseroom environment. No duplications are allowed for credit. This will provide a view of up to 20 different articles on the weekly topic. “Poster” discussions should include a discussion of current events and how the subject matter relates to concepts presented in the text. “Commentor” input should develop on prior content. Students will obtain full credit for class participation by actively participating in the class discussions and assignments. Students are expected to post one original article and comment on at least half of peer postings. (30 percent of final grade).

Grades will be based on students’ preparation and performance in case discussions, article summaries, film critiques, and projects.
