OUTCOME COMPETENCIES: Listed below are specific course learning objectives established from textbooks and class discussion:

1. Connect major world events to select pieces of American, British, and European literature.
2. Demonstrate knowledge of major literary movements and how these movements are linked to the select pieces of literature.

3. Demonstrate the ability to read critically and communicate persuasively about the works selected.

The more the student puts into the course, the higher his or her outcome competencies will be.

Attendance Requirements: Students will be required to participate in all discussions (usually via Blackboard) during the time frame specified for each week. This makes up a significant part of your grade.

Disability Statement: It is University policy that no otherwise qualified disabled person be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subject to discrimination under any educational program or activity in the University. Students should inform the instructor of existing disabilities at the first class meeting. (Documentation of disability may be required.)

Course Requirements and Grading Criteria:

Grading Percentage		Grading for Course

Short Essay: The short essay will require you to read an additional short story by Nathaniel Hawthorne and compare its themes, techniques and symbolism to one of the stories we read in class. This paper should be a maximum of 2 pages in length. (Be aware that writing shorter papers is NOT easier than writing longer papers. You will have to be VERY clear about what you want to say, and then say it in as succinct a manner as possible.) Although it is not forbidden, you will not be required to cite sources for this essay.

Research Writing: Students will be required to write a short research paper on one of the authors we will be studying this semester. In addition to the work that we will be doing, you will be required to read ONE additional novel. I have provided a free week in the syllabus (Week 10) to allow for that reading. The available authors and the book you need to read for them are listed in Week 10 of the syllabus. This paper will be described in detail during the term.

All written work must be typewritten according to the format which will be specified once class begins. All assignments must be submitted via email to dr.timbrady@gmail.com and should be turned in on the assigned date unless you have the instructor's approval for an extension.

PLEASE DO NOT USE THE DIGITAL DROPBOX FOR ANY COURSE SUBMISSIONS.
